The best online railway management simulation and the most successful train game on Facebook is arriving to iOS and Android smartphones and tablets in 2013. Its game developer Pixel Federation is one of the top 20 Facebook developers and presents their first mobile game project.

TrainStation takes you through the history of railways from the age of wild west and steam to the state-of-the-art trains and future maglev concepts. You will transport people, letters and materials, fulfil contracts and manage stations. The game is loaded with more than 500 real locomotives and wagons appealing not only to passionate collectors but to casual players too. Build your own unique station thanks to various themes, buildings and decorations.

TrainStation will be available in a brand new look on mobile devices and tablets in the first half of 2013 for free. To find more information, screenshots and to be the first to play click here.
